SAM'S KITE

On Saturday morning, Sam took his new blue kite to the park. At first, the wind was too gentle, so the kite stayed on the grass.

After a while, a breeze began to blow and Sam's kite rose high. Suddenly, a gust pushed it into a low tree.

Sam asked the park keeper, Mrs Patel, for help. She brought a long pole and carefully lifted the kite free.

Finally, Sam walked to the open field. He held the string tightly and ran. His kite danced above him all afternoon.
